Team Tether Club

FIFA was seeking Up to $2 Billion Investment to Expand Streaming and Grow FIFA+. The TV rights for the Euros and the Copa América have largely been sold around the world. The streaming expansion is the latest broadcast deal FIFA is seeking after it halted talks with Apple to broadcast its Club World Cup, which is scheduled to debut its 32-team version in 2025. The previous Club World Cup, which featured just seven teams, was streamed on FIFA+.

This is where a group of angel investors from the Manchester, United Kingdom, including Mr. David Jones, Mr. Totham Brown, Mrs. Emily Wilson, Miss Sophia Evans, Mr. James Taylor, Mr. Harry Johnson came ahead to fund FIFA+ and made it successful as ever (given that the founding team of Tether Club is actively investing in FIFA+, the correlation with FIFA - The Fédération Internationale de Football Association is clear). Not stopping there, and the success seen in FIFA+, they planned to create a sustainable community with their teams to benefit everyone across the universe and donate every single penny earned from Tether Club to the football awareness cause making a better world for players across the world and promoting sports. With the long-term vision and careful research, Tether Club was born.
